9th Japanese Linguistics Sympoisum 2023

"Community, Collaboration, and Collegiality: Researching Japanese Linguistics in a Post-COVID-19 World"

9th Japanese Linguistics Symposium 2023

About

- The Faculty of Foreign Language Studies/Graduate School of Foreign Language Education & Research at Kansai University is looking forward to hosting the 9th Japanese Linguistics Symposium 2023 (JSL 2023). This will be the first time the symposium has been hosted in Japan.

- Dates: 21st - 23rd December 2023.

- The symposium aims to bring scholars and research students together to discuss their ongoing research in a relaxed and supportive way. We ask that attendees be open to new ideas and come prepared to contribute to members' developing research.

- This year's symposium theme is "Community, Collaboration, and Collegiality: Researching Japanese Linguistics Post-COVID-19" and reflects the importance of supporting one another during times of immense change.

Submission Details

- We ask that all participants register using the QR code below.

- For those wishing to present their research, when registering, please select a suitable day and time you wish to present (we will do our best to ensure you can present at your desired time). Presenters will also need to upload an abstract using the template provided on the website.

- Abstract details: Up to 300 words (not including title, references, and keywords)

Conference Website

Registration

KANSAI UNIVERSITY